New Medical Ruling Blow To Local City Hospital; Say Addition Is Needed

Institution Will be Placed at Greater Operating Expense If It Is Not Recognized As Training School for Nurses-- all Smaller Hospitals Will Suffer-

That the local City hospital is about facing a crisis as the result of a recent ruling of the state medical board unless the present quarters are enlarged, is the opinion of Dr. Elmer G. Smailes given in an interview last night.

The ruling, which was made October 12 after a conference of the state medical board and representatives of the more important hospitals throughout the state, is to the effect that no hospital will be recognized as a training school for nurses unless it has an average of fifteen patients a day. This ruling according to local physicians will exclude the local hospital.

In speaking of the matter last night, Dr. Smailes said that the local hospital does not have the proper accommodations to bring up the average. "Several times," said Dr. Smailes, "physicians have been forced to keep patients waiting, who required an operation, because there was not room to accommodate them." It is said that the local hospital has, by crowding, accommodations for but 28. "There is enough work in the county," continued Dr. Smailes, "to keep up the average and for more, and if the present quarters were enlarged it could easily be done. Under present circumstances it looks as though the ruling will prove a severe blow."

"Not So Bad."

Dr. Shaw was more optimistic in regard to the matter. He declared that the ruling was brought about through the influence of the larger hospitals which were thus seeking to secure more patients and squeeze out the smaller institutions. Coshocton county and several others, he declared, are doing almost 98 percent of their surgery cases at home instead of sending the patients to Columbus and other cities with large hospitals. A conference of physicians of the state would find the physicians connected with the large hospitals in the minority and it could then throw out the ruling, in his opinion.

Self Supporting.

Since the regime of the new matron, Mrs. Lake, beginning seven months ago, the institution has been self-supporting, and one of the few municipal hospitals in the state which can that record. There has been no surplus over the expenses of the institution and this has been turned over to other departments of the city. This saving, in part at least, is accounted for by the fact that student nurses have been willing to enter the institution at a small salary in order to secure training and become graduate nurses. With the ruling effective and no such conditions continuing to exist, it is believed that few will be willing to enter unless given a much larger salary, thus increasing the yearly expenditures of the institution and is especially causing an increase in the fees charged patients. This latter fact may reduce the number of patients still further.

Students Anxious.

"Physicians say that the ruling will work a genuine hardship on many of the nurses now in training at the local hospital as well as those in other small institutions. At a small stipend, they have entered the institution and worked for months with a view to graduating a diploma and being recognized as trained nurses. With the ruling effective, the time will have been thrown away as they will receive no credit for the work done. Dr. Smailes said last night that considerable anxiety has been aroused among the student nurses at the City hospital and that the ruling may result in some of them quitting the work. It is understood that there are at least seven nurses at the City hospital who would be affected. It is expected that the matron of the hospital will go to Columbus the first of the week and with the representatives of other institutions make a final defense before

SERBIA MAKES FINAL STAND AGAINST FOE

Paris, Oct. 16.—Heavily beset on three sides, Serbia is making a last-ditch fight for her life. It was conceded in military circles here today that help by the allies must reach the little nation speedily to be availing.

Following England's declaration of war on Bulgaria, it was expected that France, Russia and Italy will take similar action immediately.

The Serbians claimed to be holding their own against the Bulgarians on the east of the Austrians on the west, along the Drina river, but it was admitted but the combined German and Austrian drive from the north was making steady progress through the Morava valley.

Speed Is Important.

Field Marshal Von Mackensen, from all accounts, realizes the importance of speed to the Teutonic allies as fully as the Serbians appreciate the necessity of delaying the invaders until assistance can reach them from the British, French, Russians and Italians.

He was reported today to be hurling his men against the Serbian defenses regardless of losses. Those, Nish dispatches said, were enormous. Nevertheless the weight of numbers was telling.

It is admittedly clear that the invaders will reach Constantinople unless the Serbians are reinforced. There were reports that the British, recently landed at Salonika, were pushing toward the fighting zone. It was not believed however, that they were numerous enough to accomplish much.

May Withdraw Troops.

Stronger forces are known to be needed imperatively. France, so far as could be learned in official quarters, had not yet taken any steps. The conviction is growing that the French and British will call off the Dardanelles campaign, at least temporarily, to use the troops on the Gallipoli peninsula in Serbia.

Italian government officials are holding a series of conferences with a view of deciding on a program. An announcement from Rome is looked for hourly.

Czar Has Men Ready.

Russia is understood to have the men ready but to look means of getting them to the point where they are needed.

Roumania's decision to remain neutral appears to have closed that avenue, except through the Dardanelles, at which the allies are fighting.

It is agreed that the situation is serious. Some solution of the difficulty is found to, however, there is a percentage of views between London, Paris, Petrograd and Rome within the next few hours.

BIRTH NOTE.

THE WEATHER

FOR OHIO—Fair Sunday and probably Monday.

LITTLE BROWN HANDS

They drive home the cows from the pasture,
Up through the long, shady lane,
Where the quail whistles loud in the wheat fields
That are yellow with ripening grain.
They find in the thick waving grasses
Where the scarlet-tipped strawberry grows;
They gather the earliest snowdrops
And the first crimson buds of the rose.

They toss the new hay in the meadow;
They gather the elder-bloom white;
They find where the dusky grapes purple
In the soft-tinted October light.
They know where the apples hang ripest,
And are sweeter than Italy's wines;
They know where the fruit hangs the thickest
On the long, thorny blackberry vines.

They gather the delicate seaweed,
And build tiny castles of sand;
They pick up the beautiful sea shells—
Fairy barks that have drifted to land.
They wave from the tall, rocking tree tops,
Where the oriole's hammock-nest swings;
And at night time are folded in slumber
By a song that a fond mother sings.

Those who toil bravely are strongest;
The humble and poor become great;
And so from these brown-handed children
Shall grow mighty rulers of state.
The pen of the author and statesman—
The noble and wise of the land—
The sword, and the chisel, and palette
Shall be held in the little brown hand.

Deal Necessary For Either Old Party to Win Out

Present Indications Point to Re-election of Mayor Staats -- Expected Cohesion of Democrats And Republicans Fails to Materialize -- 2,300 Votes Expected.

Indications Saturday were that either in the hope of beating Staats, Mayor L. N. Staats will be successful in his campaign for re-election, unless the Republican and Democratic parties get together.

Republican and Democratic politicians admit that this is the case and also say that there are no plans being made to discard either W. H. Compton, the Democratic candidate, or Henry L. Richardson, the Republican candidate.

Many of the city's best known politicians have been interviewed during the past few days by a Tribune reporter and a majority admit that the Socialist is the strongest candidate as the matter now stands.

Since before the primaries there has been talk of the Democrats and Republicans uniting in an effort to defeat the Socialist, but each party has gone ahead and made plans for the campaign until the leaders are of the opinion that if there is any deal made, it will have to be made immediately.

It is generally admitted that each party would be glad to receive a proposition from the other, but neither party has displayed any inclination to make the first move.

A Democrat said to the reporter: "We are whipped unless the Republicans and Democrats get together and I see no chance for this. I would be glad to see the two old parties unite on one man."

A Republican said, "I am afraid Staats will win unless we get together. While I personally favor Richardson I would vote for Compton if the two parties would select him as the man to beat the Socialist."

In 1913 Staats polled a total of 862 votes. McDonald received 791 votes and Heffelfinger 656 votes giving Staats a plurality of 71 votes. It is believed by many that Staats has gained more votes than he has lost since that time. The Democratic candidate this year will, according to present indications, run ahead of Heffelfinger. If this dope is correct the Republican vote will of necessity be lighter this year than in 1913 as it is not believed that there will be any considerable difference in the total vote cast.

English Reformation Is Basis For Pageant

One of the most stupendous productions ever undertaken by local talent will be the Oliver Cromwell and Charles I. of England pageant to be presented at the Sixth Street theatre Monday and Tuesday evenings, October 18 and 19, under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Organization.

The pageant tells in tableaux, dialogue and song the story of the English Reformation in the Seventeenth Century and the struggle between the Puritans and Cavaliers. The cast of 150 local talent will be augmented by Miss Ethel Brown, of Washington, who with stereopticon views will give a lecture filling in the periods between each act.

Miss Brown has traveled extensively in Europe, giving particular attention to the district in which the interest centers about the thrilling period of the Civil War in England, the life of that ill-fated monarch Charles I., the life and rise of Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector, and the growth of Puritans. The costumes worn by those taking part, with all of the picturesque detail of Cavalier and Round-head, Courtier and Puritan, Royalists and Ironsides, will be attractive, unique and historically correct.

The costuming throughout is intended to be part of the great object lesson in history. The views are of the highest order.

The pageant opens with an Allegorical Processional in which Puritans and Cavaliers vie with each other in praise to God. This is followed by the story of Cromwell and Charles I. told by Miss Brown with Stereopticon views. The third scene is at Cambridge university, and in this fifteen students decide that their lives

Dickerson pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs. He made arrangements to pay the amount and was released from the county jail where he was being held pending payment.

The trouble occurred at Mrs. Shaffer's home Friday afternoon. Local Man Indicted On Bad Charge

New Philadelphia, Oct. 15.—To answer a charge of white slavery under the Mann act, William Stewart, a rover, who has been held in the county jail here for some time under a peace bond, will be taken to Cleveland Saturday by United States district marshal. Sheriff Dorcy received word Friday that Stewart would be taken off his hands sometime Saturday.

Stewart's home is said to be in the vicinity of Coshocton. He has several brothers residing in that city.

Stewart was placed under a peace bond by Mayor Kuhns, several weeks ago.

The charge was found against Stewart by the federal grand jury which has been in session in Cleveland this week. The alleged crime is a serious one.

Stewart, it is said, inveigled a local woman to go with him into another state. After he tired of the woman's company, it is said he abandoned her. He returned to this city and told many friends of his little escapade. Soon after his arrival he was placed under a peace bond. Complaint was made to federal authorities in Cleveland, with the result that the indictment was found against him by the federal grand jury.

Gilbert Myers, who has been spending the summer in Michigan, arrived in Coshocton Friday for a visit at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Caton, on South Fifth-st.

A Child Doesn't Laugh and Play If Constipated

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

Cape of Good Hope.

The Cape of Good Hope lies at a considerable distance from the end of South Africa and is, in fact, the middle of the three promontories, severally inconspicuous, which jointly terminate a slender peninsula some twenty miles in length forming the barrier between False bay and the Atlantic ocean on the west. These three headlands, lying near together and commonly undivided on a map of moderate scale, are locally designated Cape Point. It was here that Bartholomew Diaz first encountered in full force the prevalent southeasterly gales and denounced the rugged, threatening, threefold promontory under the sounding appellation of the Cape of Storms, to be afterward rechristened by pious, trustful hearts the Cape of Good Hope.

Taking Up the Recoil.

The quick firing field gun used by the French and British is equipped with a most ingenious device for taking up the recoil. When it is fired the gun slides along guides on the top of a steel box, called the cradle. Inside of the cradle and attached to the gun is a piston, which is driven by the recoil into a cylinder filled with glycerin. The glycerin is forced through narrow channels into a reservoir full of compressed air, which it further compresses. This friction brings the gun to rest after it has recoiled, and then the expansion of the compressed air forces the glycerin back into the piston and returns the gun to the firing position once more.—Scientific American.

SUPPOSE THERE WERE FOUR MARRIAGABLE DAUGHTERS IN YOUR FAMILY, AND THE YOUNGEST INSISTED ON SNATCHING AWAY HER ELDER SISTER'S MATRIMONIAL OPPORTUNITIES?

[illegible] Miei, has proved [illegible] to the system, and, due to a girlish prank, is sent to the convent. One evening she leaves the nunnery by means of a rope ladder, and goes to a masked ball, where she meets a fascinating lieutenant of the reserves, Count Feri Horkey, and dances with him [illegible]. When she returns via the roped ladder, she finds all the nuns assembled at the window waiting for her, and is promptly expelled. So she goes home, having borrowed money from the lieutenant to do so. Great is the consternation of her mother, however, when she appears in fine clothes and dressed like a lady. None of the older sisters are married, and Miei is the best looking one of them all. So she is forced to put on short dresses and instructed to act as though she were fourteen years old. Promptly appears the lieutenant, to whom the surprising situation is explained, and who wagers three kisses with Miei that he will have the three older sisters speedily married. True to his promise, the three sisters, as well as Miei, are promptly wed, but not until after a series of humorous complications that are irresistibly illustrated on the screen.

RULING BLOW TO HOSPITAL

[illegible] hope of having the ruling reconsidered.

Physicians Meet.

The following excerpt giving the account of the adoption of the ruling is taken from the Cleveland Plain Dealer:

Cleveland Plain Dealer:

"After a two hour discussion with representatives of every important hospital in the state, the state medical board has adopted a set of minimum requirements for recognition of hospitals that are to be training schools for nurses.

"The debate of some of the mooted points was spirited, particularly on the provision that no hospital be recognized as a training school unless it had an average of twenty patients a day.

"This was finally reduced to fifteen that it might not operate to include the smaller hospitals. The state requirements as to air space for the hospital must be met. The rules are to be in force after January 1, 1916.

"Another of the requirements is that there shall be at least one fourth and not more than one-half as many student nurses as patients. The teachers in the training schools must be graduates of recognized training schools."

Mistake of Commas.

This instance of what a mistake of a comma can produce has been noticed:

"Lord Palmerston then entered upon his head, a white hat upon his feet, large but well polished boots upon his brow, a dark cloud in his hand, his faithful walking stick in his eye, a dark menacing glare saying nothing."

FOURTH GAME OF SERIES IS PLAYED TODAY

The fourth game in the county championship series will be played at the Red Sox diamond this afternoon with the Federals and All-Stars opposing each other. It is possible that the series will be decided by tomorrow's game as the Feds have already won two games and should they win today the series will be over.

Manager Lawrence, of the All-Stars is expected to have some new men in his lineup today in an effort to stop the Feds winning streak which threatens to take the series. Hook will pitch for the All-Stars. He will be opposed by Leavengood for the Feds. Smith and Burns two big leaguers, will also be in the All-Star lineup.

FIRST BOWLIMG MATCH OF SEASON

A match game between two picked teams to be played on the Pastime alleys Monday night is attracting quite a bit of attention among the local bowlers. Two of the men, H. Dixon and J. Bontley made the record score of 1248 for three consecutive games. The two teams will be composed of the following men:

Bordenkircher	C. W. Johnston
H. Dixon	William Pope
Ed Arnold	Quackenbush
Frank Pfous	Leavengood
George Hall	Judge Ashman

Eating When Tramping.

Experiments have shown that animals which demand a mixed diet will starve as surely and almost as quickly when fed on a one sided diet, even though it be large in bulk, as when deprived of food altogether, and the same thing holds true for men. Hunger of a moderate degree is not prejudicial to strength and vigor, provided it be what might be termed a general hunger. The thing to be carefully guarded against on a hard march is the tremendous hunger for some particular food content, such as sweet or fat or starch, which we so often find in the case of a carelessly equipped expedition. A well rounded ration is worth two which are not so. The man who has this principle firmly in mind has made a long step toward success as a field leader.—Outing.

A Varnish That Will Stand This Will Stand Most Anything

VALENTINE'S VALSPAR
The Varnish That Won't Turn White

This quick lunch counter in York, Pa., was varnished with Valspar in 1910. The restaurant never closes, night or day, and for five years hot and cold dishes, water and fruit acids, hot coffee and tea have been shooting across it.

It's been splashed and washed and scalded, but after five years the Valspar varnish is still there and looks well.

Valspar fairly thrives on wetting whereas other varnishes turn pale, become brittle and shortly after disappear entirely leaving the shabby, bare wood.

You can have a sanitary kitchen, a waterproof bath room, or a front hall door and floor that won't develop shabby spots if you use Valspar.

We sell it—and guarantee it to be satisfactory or your money back.

Printed instructions for using Valspar correctly and a set of beautiful Valspar Poster Stamps can be obtained from us free of charge.

She Will Recover

So her doctor said. Her friends and neighbors felt sure of it too. They have used Peruna themselves and know of its merits. That old cough that had worried her for years and years, for which she had taken all sorts of cough medicines, has disappeared. Peruna is doing the work. She will recover. Indeed, she has recovered.

Her name is Mrs. William Hohanum, 2761 Lincoln Ave., Chicago, Ills. She had suffered with catarrh of the bronchial tubes and had a terrible cough ever since a child. As she got older she grew worse. She coughed both winter and summer. Had to sit up at night. Could not sleep. "But all that has left me now. Peruna has cured me."

There are others, and there is a reason.

Women In The News

Philadelphia—That Christmas is not far off in the minds of boys and girls of this and other cities of the United States is evidenced by the flood of petitions that are daily pouring into the home of Miss Olive May Wilson, the at a time when other more formof cheering up neglected children "Santa Claus Girl." The work tunate children are enjoying the Christmas season was begun three years ago by Miss Wilson, and has increased in proportions she little dreamed of at the outset. From a distribution of a few hundred toys at first, the work has grown to such an extent that last year 17,250 gifts were sent out. Miss Wilson's work has attracted attention throughout the United States, and has the approval and commendation of Vice-President Marshall and other national figures.

New Rochelle, N. Y.—With the object of cutting down the cost of living, improving the schools and providing clean amusement for the citizens, two leading women of this city are campaigning for office. Miss Anna L. Bruel, a Vassar graduate, is candidate for the City Council on the Socialist ticket. The second woman candidate is Mrs. Helen Metcalfe Kobbe who seeks to become supervisor in the Second war. She is the daughter of Dr. Francis Metcalfe of New York, was educated in Paris and in Italy, and is a painter of note. Her husband is running for Mayor on the Socialist ticket. Both the women candidates are hustlers, and are putting up strong campaigns on a platform of municipal ownership of water works, railways and gas plants.

Washington—The lagging gayety of the capital city is the reason assigned for the new fads and fancies of the diplomatic set. When so many of the government men and the diplomats are worried over the important developments of the times, their women folks have turned to the domestic arts, long neglected and ignored. Miss Henrietta R. Morales, daughter of the minister from Panama, is taking a course with a view of establishing a domestic science college in her home city. Mme. Pezet, wife of the minister of Peru, is enrolled in a salad course at a local cooking school, and she finds there is much to be learned about this delicacy of the modern table. Mrs. Oscar Underwood is also studying the domestic arts, and Miss Margaret Draper, goddaughter of the dowager queen of Italy, and who has a fortune of six millions, is being complimented on her rise. Indeed it a domestic Washington, the ball-room being neglected during these eventful days.

Raleight, N. C.—To head a hospital out in the thinly-settled section of this state, where the only means of transportation is the saddlehorse, is the appointment recently given to a woman doctor. She is Dr. Eileen Giles, a graduate of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania. Her hospital is the Alto Pass Hospital, where she has charge of a 20-bed hospital, newly equipped and a modern operating room. On many of her calls she has to travel a distance of 20 miles each way up and down precipitous trail.

Washington—"Sister Beatrice" the Florence Nightingale of the French battle front, was a recent visitor in Washington. She came to see M. Jules Jusserand, the French ambassador, and is now in Canad to confer with General Hughes about the medical requirements at the war front during the coming winter. "Sister Beatrice" is Mrs. Beatrice Barlett, of the Medico-Militarie Francaise. She is the only woman connected with the service. She has the absolute entree of every quarter of the fighting zone of the entente allies. She wears a distinctive military habit that assures her instant recognition anywhere in the fighting lines. This habit is composed of a purple and white head dress, a white gown and an enormous purple military cape. Since a year ago she has become a national figure, and manager of supplies.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The most envied woman in America, in point of health, is Mrs. Louise K. Theirs of this city, who has completed 101 years of an active useful life, without ever being sick a single day. Her only illness in over a century is one headache which she suffered for a few hours when she was 8 years old.

City subscribers should insist on a receipt from the carrier.

A NURSE TAKES DOCTOR'S ADVICE

And is Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Euphemia, Ohio.—"Because of total ignorance of how to care for myself when verging into womanhood, and from taking cold when going to school, I suffered from a displacement, and each month I had severe pains and nausea which always meant a lay-off from work for two to four days from the time I was 16 years old.

"I went to Kansas to live with my sister and while there a doctor told me of the Pinkham remedies but I did not use them then as my faith in patent medicines was limited. After my sister died I came home to Ohio to live and that has been my home for the last 18 years.

"The Change of Life came when I was 47 years old and about this time I saw my physical condition plainly described in one of your advertisements. Then I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot tell you or any one the relief it gave me in the first three months. It put me right where I need not lay off every month and during the last 18 years I have not paid out two dollars to a doctor, and have been blest with excellent health for a woman of my age and I can thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it.

"Since the Change of Life is over I have been a maternity nurse and being wholly self-supporting I cannot over estimate the value of good health. I have now earned a comfortable little home just by sewing and nursing. I have recommended the Compound to many with good results, as it is excellent to take before and after childbirth."—Miss EVELYN ADELIA STEWART, Euphemia, Ohio.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Yeggs Wreck A Bank Safe

Kalida, Ohio, Oct. 16.—Yeggmen blew the safe in the People's bank here early this morning and escaped with more than $500 in cash and postage stamps. The postage stamps, worth $300, belonged to Herman Holkamp, postmaster, and were in his safety deposit box. Three explosions of nitroglycerine failed to reach the inner door of the big vault. Here there was more than $2000 in cash. The entire interior of the bank was wrecked and the big plate glass windows broken.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vonderhose live next door to the bank. They heard the explosions and hurried to the doors, only to find them bolted and barricaded from the outside. Auto tracks gave a clue to the direction the yeggmen went and bloodhounds were put on the trail. As the men left they scattered tacks over the roadway to puncture the tires of pursuing autos.

THE DRINK HABIT AMONG WOMEN

The impression prevails both in this country and in Europe that drinking among men is declining; that economic and industrial pressure; widespread knowledge of the ill effects of alcohol; higher ethical standards; and disgust with the political methods of the liquor interests have tended in the last decade to reduce materially the consumption of beverage intoxicants among men.

However this may be, drinking is not declining among women. In this country at least, there has never been a time when women so generally drank as now. Never has the drink habit had so strong a hold on the women of America as it has today. The most significant social development in this country is the alarming spread of the use of intoxicants among the middle and well-to-do classes of women in our largest cities.

In every American city with a population of 200,000 and more the cafes and fashionable hotels are nightly crowded with girls and young women. They are not prostitutes and social outcasts. The latter classes may be found in profusion in the tenderloin and red light districts. But in the big hotels and cafes are to be found salesgirls, stenographers, clerks and girls from respectable homes, who have in some manner best known to parents themselves, broken away from parental restraints and are headed in the course which leads to the cheap wine room and the brothel.

Probation officers and police matrons in the large cities are filling the columns of newspapers—at least such newspapers as are sufficiently free from brewery domination to print the news—with pitiful stories of how the ruin of young girls is wrought and of the appalling numbers who are nightly seeking, unattended, the fashionable drinking places of their respective cities.

The effect of this sort of thing, physically and morally, on our future national life is not a matter of guesswork. A drunken father is a domestic calamity. A drunken mother or daughter is nothing short of a visitation of Divine wrath upon a nation which has so long tolerated on the body politic the cancerous growth of alcoholism.

AMERICA'S BURDEN

Under the caption, "Why Democracy Falters," the New Republic in a recent issue has the following pertinent comment on the civilization whicht the United States has thus far developed:

> The bitter fact is that our education is too poor, our leisure too short, our work too crowded, for any serious grappling with the questions which every day's newspaper sets before us. We could not be prepared for any such calamity as that which disturbs the world. But behind that unpreparedness lies an archaic and stingy educational system, a grinding and wasteful system of industry, a neglect of those arts and sciences which steady the mind and recreate it from day to day. Our jerry-built cities, our soot, the cracked paint of our houses, the dusty carelessness of city life, its flaring second-hand amusements, are the setting in which people lose the vitality to deal with those problems which they dare not fail to solve. The helplessness of our discussion is the natural result of years of unventilated, unirrigated haste. It is the price of our distrust of thought, of theory, of realism, of intellectual integrity.

Admitting the undeniable truth of the above, the fact yet remains that our democracy, cramped and undeveloped as it is, is better poised and is closer to the eternal truths of existence than any of the Old World autocracies.

Our educational system may be "archaic and stingy;" our industrial system "grinding and wasteful;" our city life all that is charged against it; and yet with all our drawbacks we have had less to do with the "calamity which now disturbs the world" than any other nation in the world.

While civilization in Europe seems toppling from its foundations and the mind of man is incapable of grasping the very awfulness of the situation which is slowly choking the life out of Europe, the fact remains that the United States, with all its manifest imperfections, is the only hope of the future, the sheet anchor which is destined to hold and save all the advancement the race has made in twenty centuries of Christian progress.

Admitting all [illegible] the critics charge us with, the world today [illegible] looks to America as the one hope for the reconstruction of civilization after Europe has emerged from the [illegible] she has plunged herself.

NOTABLE BIRTHDAYS TODAY

Oct. 17.

Hon. Robert Lansing, Secretary of State for the United States, the strong right arm of President Wilson in the handling of the difficult international situation of the present time, is 51 years old today. It was one morning last summer that Robert Lansing awoke to find himself famous. A patient, thorough and modest worker in the Department of State, he had been formulating for the President the diplomatic messages that meant so much to the honor of the country. When Col. Bryan resigned, President Wilson reached out for this man of real worth and tendered him the portfolio and premier. While politicians stood against at the boldness of this operation, and then vented their wrath at the lost opportunity to place another of their own member in the cabinet, President Wilson clasped the firm hand of the first man who had won his way to this great office outside the pale of political choice. Robert Lansing was born at Watertown, N. Y., October 17, 1864 He was graduated from Amherst and took up the practice of law in his home town. Soon afterwards he married a daughter of Hon. John W. Foster, Secretary of State under President Benjamin Harrison. Then he took up international law. He took a leading part in many international arbitrations and was made Counselor of the State Department in 1914. Only a short year afterward, he was in the cabinet. By working day and night, modestly commanding the ship of state behind the official cover of Bryan, he gained the attention and friendship of the President. The Secretary, when not at his desk, is climbing mountains or playing golf or baseball. He is a commanding athletic man, and a leading figure in Washington circles.

Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse University, 70 years old today.

Militia on Guard In City Street

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 16.—Military guard was provided today by order of Governor Manning for the meeting of the city Democratic executive committee, which was broken up here yesterday by a shooting scrape in which Reporter Sidney J. Cohen was killed and four injured. The committee was attempting to count the ballots of the recent Democratic municipal primary, to determine whether Mayor John P. Grace or his opponent had been nominated for mayor, when the shooting was begun by an unknown person in the committee room.

Police, deputy sheriffs and a local militia company soon dispersed the crowd, both in the building and on the street outside, and prevented further disorder. Governor Manning then ordered militiamen to guard the committee when it resumed its task today.

Feeling has been wrought up to a high pitch here over the primaries, nomination in which is regarded as equivalent to election. [illegible] Tuesday last, the day of the primary, Hyde ad[illegible] J. E. Martin [illegible] the governor ordered [illegible] militia companies and divisions of the naval militia to be held at their armories here to prevent possible disorder.

Murphysboro, Ill., Oct. 16.—Joe DeBerry, a negro, was hanged here at 9:30 o'clock today for the murder of Mrs. J. H. Martin, wife of a leading white attorney of southern Illinois. Two thousand persons who had responded to the public notices sent out by Sheriff White, crowded into the stockade, 20 feet high, built in the public square, to witness the execution. Three thousand more visitors were in town unable to obtain admission to the stockade.

People from the country began to come into the city before dawn on the report that the negro would be hanged earlier in the day. DeBerry, on the scaffold, confessed his crime.

The hanging of DeBerry was a holiday function. The county had not had an execution in years. Business in Murphysboro was resumed and the people of the countryside were making ready to return home when DeBerry was pronounced officially dead at 9:42 o'clock.

Action Is Resented

This action was resented by supporters of Mayor Grace, who charged that it was unnecessary, and tended to influence voters in favor of Hyde.

The day of the primary passed off quietly and next day the militiamen were released from their armories. Thursday night Governor Manning sent Colonel E. M. Blythe here from Columbia to take command of the National Guard companies in case of trouble, when the executive committee met.

Within half an hour after yesterday's shooting the Washington Light Infantry with fixed bayonets was clearing the streets outside the building where the shooting occurred, and later other companies were assembled at their armory for possible duty.

Militiamen patrolled the streets [illegible] today. They reported no disorder. As an additional precaution, the governor closed all dispensaries in Charleston county, in which the city of Charleston is situated, and ordered eight companies of militia in nearby towns to be prepared to come here if needed.

All of the men who were wounded yesterday will recover, it is said today. Besides those shot, a number of persons in the committee room and in the adjacent hallway where it was said disorder first broke out, were suffering from bruises suffered in the scramble for exits. Others were clubbed, it was said, by policemen. Six men were arrested, all said to be supporters of Hyde. They were held without charges being preferred against them.

HOW THE SUNKEN SUBMARINE "F-4" WAS RAISED

After five months of practically continuous work under extremely trying conditions, the submarine "F-4" which with a crew of 22 men on board had failed to rise following a dive in water 300 ft. deep outside the harbor of Honolulu, was raised to the surface and on August 30 was placed in dry dock. The raising of this vessel is by far the most remarkable feat in ship raising ever accomplished, says the November Popular Mechanics Magazine. After the vessel had been docked, an examination showed two large holes, one at the bow and the other at the stern, while the bottom and starboard were found to be filled with sand, mud, battery plates, and other debris. At that time no definite cause for the disaster to the vessel could be discovered. There were indications, however, that the crew had been asphyxiated by chlorine gas generated by the leakage of sea water into the cells of the storage batteries, and that the holes in the hull had been caused, after the death of the crew, by the pounding of the vessel on the sea bottom. A view of the submarine after being raised and placed in dry dock accompanies the article, which fully describes the difficulties encountered in the work and the means employed to overcome them.

LORDS AND RETAINERS.

The Feudal System Has Not Yet Been Entirely Eliminated In Japan.

There is in Japan a social relationship between employer and employee not known in your country. It is the relationship of lord and retainer. For many centuries Japan was under a feudal system where the giver of "yoki" or annual pension was the lord, while the recipient of it was the retainer. Such feudalistic relations between payer and payee have not yet altogether died away in this country, though they are gradually diminishing with the capitalization of labor. Even today he who pays wages is allowed to assume something of the mental attitude of the lord—not in a despotic but in a protectoral sense—toward those who receive them.

A young man who was earning his school expenses by work in America came into possession of a lengthy letter from his mother left behind in Japan repeatedly advising him to be loyal to the person of his master, and he looked around to find, to his renewed surprise, that nobody would claim in the republic such personal loyalty as his good old mother must have meant.

But in Japan there exist many subjects for his quasi feudalistic virtue. My American readers may think that the comparative scarcity of strikes in Japan is due to lack of self assertion on the part of laborers, but that is not quite right. The chief explanation must be found in their active loyalty to their employer's person rather than in their passive forbearance.—From "Japan's Message to America," by Kojiro Matsukata (D. C. L. Yale).

FLYING BULLETS.

At High Velocities Army Rifle Missiles Make Queer Sounds.

There is but one sound plainly audible from a flying bullet, and this is audible only when the bullet travels at high speed, at the rate of 1,500 feet per second or more.

Missiles from all army rifles of modern times, which vary in velocity from 2,000 to 3,000 feet per second, create a vacuum immediately behind the bullet. The result is a sharp crash as the bullet passes, caused by the air closing rapidly in behind the bullet base.

At considerable range two distinct reports are audible to the person by whom the bullet is passing. At 700 yards the sound may be described phonetically as "pack-punk." The first sound comes about three-quarters of a second ahead of the latter in the case of the United States army rifle, the new Springfield. The velocity of this rifle is 2,700 feet per second at the muzzle.

The first sound is that of the bullet passing through the air. It is like nothing so much as a long and very violently cracked blacksnake whip. The second sound comes about three-quarters of a second later. It is dead, heavy and is more like a thud than the "crack" of a rifle.

The difference in the time of the two sounds is because the bullet travels much faster than sound. Noise progresses at the rate of about a thousand feet per second.—Outing.

Growing Older.

As I see it, growing older is the process of the reconciliation of the spirit to life. Living is simply getting acquainted with the world we live in. The real purpose of a body is that it shall be used up, worn out—and then thrown away—in feeding the spirit. Whatever happens to you in the outer world translates itself finally into such a substance. That is what it is for, just as the purpose of food is not to look pretty on china plates, but to be transformed into blood and muscle. It is in the natural order of things that the body should be thus used and exhausted. The unnatural and horrible thing is that the body should be worn out and yet the spirit remain unnourished. —Atlantic.

Correct Diagnosis.

John Fiske, the historian, was once interrupted by his wife, who complained that their son had been very disrespectful to some neighbors. Mr. Fiske called the youngster into his study.

"My boy, is it true that you called Mrs. Jones a fool?"

The boy hung his head. "Yes, father."

"And did you call Mr Jones a worse fool?"

"Yes, father."

Mr. Fiske frowned and pondered for a minute. Then he said

"Well, my son, that is just about the distinction I should make."

No Fire Within.

Times have changed. Our fathers for some strange reason preferred a cold meeting house to one which was warmed by artificial heat. When a stove was put into the Old South church, Boston, in 1783 a newspaper of contemporary date contained this significant lament:

Extinct the sacred fire of love,
Our zeal grown cold and dead,
In the house of God we fixed a stove
To warm us in their stead

Misunderstood.

"How now?"

"This fellow told me he was going to show me the beauties of the town."

"Well, didn't he?"

"He meant parks and office buildings. I was prepared to see some feminine loveliness."—Pittsburgh Post

The Variety.

"Well, judging by the condition of their stock, it must often be a sort of watermelon."—Baltimore American.

Pyorrhea—the disease nearly everybody has

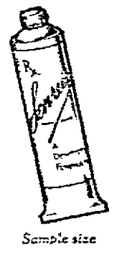

No matter how sound your teeth may seem to be, no matter how you may scoff at the idea of your having this disease, it is a positive fact that the germ which causes it is working now in your teeth.

The appalling discovery of this fact—that the germ which causes pyorrhea is one which inhabits every human mouth—was made over a year ago. Since then dentists have been urging everyone to take special precautions in their daily toilet to prevent this disease from developing in its acute form of bleeding gums, tenderness in chewing and loose teeth.

To meet the need for such a daily treatment and to enable everyone to take the necessary precautions against this disease, a prominent dentist has put his own prescription before the public in the convenient form of Senreco Tooth Paste.

Senreco contains the best corrective and preventive for pyorrhea known to dental science. Used daily it will successfully protect your teeth from this disease. Senreco also contains the best harmless agent for keeping the teeth clean and white. It has a refreshing flavor and leaves a wholesomely clean, cool and pleasant taste in the mouth.

Start the Senreco treatment tonight—full details in the folder wrapped around every tube. Symptoms described. A 25c two oz. tube is sufficient for six or eight weeks of the pyorrhea treatment. SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Juanita Holland, a Philadelphia young woman of wealth, on her journey with her guide, Good Anse Talbott, into the heart of the Cumberlands to become a teacher of the mountain children, looks at the door of Peter McNash's cabin. While resting there she overhears a talk between Bad Anse Havey, chief of his clan, and one of his henchmen that acquaints her with the Havey-McBriar feud

CHAPTER II—Juanita has an unprofitable talk with Bad Anse and they become antagonists.

CHAPTER III—Cal Douglas of the Havey clan is on trial in Peril, for the murder of Noah Wyatt, a McBriar.

CHAPTER IV—In the night Juanita hears feudists ride past the McNash cabin.

CHAPTER V—Juanita and Dawn McNash become friends.

CHAPTER VI—Cal Douglas is acquitted. Nash Wyatt attempts to kill him but is himself killed by the Haveys.

The tired missionary started his mule west again, and she herself followed the Widow Everson into the cabin which was for the time to be her home. When the widow left her she rummaged in her saddlebags and drew out a small leather case. She sat for a long while silent in her shuck-bottomed rocking chair, gazing wearily out at the west, where sunset fires were beginning to kindle, and where an old-rose haze was drowsing over the valley and glowing more brightly in the twisting ribbon of a far-away stream. But her eyes came often back from the panorama out there to dwell a little wistfully on a photograph in the leather frame

It was the picture of the man she had sent away. Had he himself been there just then, with her courage at ebb-tide, and had he stretched out his arms, she would have shaken her head wearily on abstract resolves and come into their embrace. But he was not there.

In the quaint conversation of the Widow Everson and her sons Juanita found so much of the amusing that she had to school herself against too great an appreciation of their utterly unintentional humor. Though she was a "fotched-on woman" to be taken on probation it was only a matter of hours before the family capitulated, as people in general had a fashion of doing under the spell of her graciousness and charm Jerry Everson, whom men accounted surly, for the first time in years brushed his shaggy hat and remembered not to "hang it on the floor," and Sim Everson hied him into the misty woods at dawn and brought home squirrels for her first breakfast in his house

In the forenoon of her first day she left the house and, crossing the tiny garden where the weeds were already growing tall and rank enough to hint of future rampageous victory, she made her way by a narrow trail that led to the crest of the ridge

Juanita was steering her course for a patriarchal poplar that sent a straight shaft heavenward at the rim of the crest, crowning its verdure like a great flag unfurled on a mighty parapet She knew that up there she could look two ways across the divide, and that her battleground would be spread before her

She looked to the east and line after line of hills melted into the sky. She looked to the west, and there, too, they rose, phalanx on phalanx, to dissolve in a smoky haze that effaced the horizon It seemed as if in a majesty of relentlessness they reached from sunrise to sunset, and so far as the looker-in on life of their people went, they might.

She stood there a long while, and finally she saw, where for a space the road ran near the brick house, unshielded by the woods, a straggling little cortege. At its front rode a stoop-shouldered man in whom, even at that far distance, she thought she recognized the missionary. Behind him came a few horsemen riding in two squads, and between the squads crawled a "jolt-wagon" drawn by mules. She knew that the Haveys were bringing back to the frontier the enemy's dead, and she shuddered at the cold reality.

It may have been three hours later that Good Anse Talbott rode up to the Widow Everson's When the girl, who had returned long ago from the crest, came out to meet him at the door she found him talking there with Milt McBriar, who had also ridden up, but from the other direction.

"Anse Havey flows," the preacher was saying, "that he has done fotched home ther body of little Nash Watt, an' thet ther boy was shot ter death a layin' in ther la'rel a hundred paces from the winder whar Cal Douglas was a standin'!"

"I've done already acknowledged thet," declared Milt in a voice into which crept a trace of truculent sullenness.

The missionary nodded "I hain't quire through yit, Milt," he went on evenly, and the girl who stood leaning against the door-frame, caught for an instant a sparkle of zealot earnestness in his weary eyes.

"Anse is willin' ter take yore hand on this truce. He's willin' ter stand pledge thet ther Haveys keeps faith. But I'm a preacher of the Gawspel of God, Milt, and I don't low ter be no go-between without both of you men does keep faith."

Milt McBriar stiffened resentfully, and his dark brows drew together under his hat brim.

"Does ye doubt thet I'll do what I says?" he inquired in a voice too soft for sincerity.

The missionary did not drop his steady and compelling eyes from the gaze direct. It was as if he were reading through the pupils of the other and searching the dark heart.

"I aims ter see thet ye both starts out fair, Milt," he said, still quietly. "An' ter thet end I aims ter admonish ye both on ther terms of this meetin' atween ye."

For an instant Milt McBriar's semblance of calm reflectiveness slipped from him and his voice rose raspingly. "Did Anse Havey learn ye thet speech?"

Good Anse Talbott shook his head patiently.

"No. I told Anse ther same thing I'm a-tellin' you. Neither Anse ner ther four men that fetches ther body will hev any sort of weepon about 'em when they comes acrost thet stile. Ye've got ter give me yore hand thet none of yore men hain't a goin' ter be armed I'm a servant of ther Most High God." For an instant fire blazed in the preacher's eyes and his voice mounted with fervor. "Fer years I've done sought ter teach his grace an' his hatred of murder ter ther people of these hyar hills When you two men shakes hands on this truce I aims ter be standin' by with a rifle-gun in my hands, an' ef I sees anything crooked I'm goin' ter use hit."

The dark giant stood for a time silent, then he gravely nodded his head "Them terms suits me," he said briefly.

The two men walked down to the fence and separated there, going in opposite directions.

A few minutes later Juanita, still standing fascinatedly in the doorway, was looking out across the shoulder of the missionary. He presided at the threshold with grave eyes, and, even after these peaceful years, there was something of familiar caress in the way his brown hand lay on his rifle-lock. Then the girl saw a strange and primitive ratification of treaty.

On either side of the little porch stood a group of solemn men, mostly bearded, mostly coatless, and all unarmed. In front of those, at the right stood Anse Havey, his eyes still the dominant feature of the picture.

Over across from him was the taller and older chieftain of the other clan. They stood there gravely, with a courtesy that cloaked their hatred Out in the road was the "jolt-wagon," and in its deep bed the girl could see the canvas that covered its burden.

As Bad Anse took his place at the front of his escort his gaze met that of Juanita. He did not speak, but for an instant she saw his face harden, his eyes narrow, and his lips set themselves It was the glance of one who has been lashed across the face and who cannot strike back, but who will not soon forget.

This time the girl's eyes did not drop, and certainly they held no hint of relenting or plea for forgiveness

But at that moment the head of the Haveys turned from her and began speaking.

"I got your message, Milt," he said casually, "an I reckon you got my answer. I've brought back Little Nash"

I'm ob'leged ter ye." The McBriar paused, then volunteered: "Ef ther boy had took counsel of me, this thing wouldn't never hev happened."

Bad Anse Havey stood looking at the other, then he nodded.

"Milt," he carelessly announced at the end of his scrutiny, while the ghost of an ironical smile glinted in his eyes, though it left his lips grave. "I've got several hosses an' mules down thar in my barn that we found hitched out in ther timber when Nash an' his friends took to the la'rel." Again he paused and studied the faces of the McBriar men before he went on. "One of 'em is your own roan mare, Milt. One of 'em b'longs ter Sam thar, and one is Rob's thar." He pointed out each man as he spoke. "Ye can get 'em any time ye send down for 'em."

The girl caught her breath and, despite her dislike, acknowledged the cool insolence with which Anse had answered Milt's plea of innocence. Milt replied only with a scowl, so Anse contemplatively continued, as though to himself:

"Hit's right smart pity for a feller to go out shootin' in the night-time an' to take a kinsman's horse—without takin' his counsel. It might lead to some misunderstandin'."

"I Gives Ye My Hand, Milt McBriar."

A baleful glare flashed deep in the eyes of the taller man, and from the henchmen at his back came an uneasy shuffle of brogans.

But the voice of Good Anse Talbott relieved the tension.

"Stiddy, thar, men," he quietly cautioned. "Ye didn't hardly meet ter talk 'bout hosses. I'll lead them nags back myself, Milt."

Then Anse Havey stepped forward and held out his hand.

"I gives ye my hand, Milt McBriar," he said, "that ther truce goes on."

"An' I gives ye mine," rejoined the other.

After a perfunctory shake the two turned together and went down the steps The girl saw both squads lifting the covered burden from the wagon and carrying it around the road, where the other wagon waited She believed that the feud was ended, but it is doubtful if either of the principals whose hands had joined paired with great trust in the integrity of the other's intentions. It is certain that one of them at least was already making plans for the future, not at all in accordance with that compact of peace.

CHAPTER VIII.

As days grew into weeks Bad Anse Havey heard nothing of the establishing of a school at the head of Tribulation though all the gossip of the countryside which might interest a dictator filtered through the valleys to his house.

He smiled a little over the copy of Plutarch's "Lives," which was the companion of his leisure moments, and held his counsel. While he thought of Juanita herself with a resentment which sprang from hurt pride, he felt for her as a menace to his power, only contempt.

But Juanita's resolve had in no wise weakened. She had seen that her original ideas had all been chaotic and born of ignorance, so she occupied herself, like a good and patient general, in pulling all the pins out of her little war map and drafting a completely new plan of campaign

With God Anse Talbott she rode up dwindling watercourses to the hovels of the "branch-water folks" and across hills wheresoever the cry of sickness or distress called him, and since his introduction was an open sesame, she found welcomes where she went.

And soon this figure, that walked with an almost lyric grace, yet with a bovish strength and litheness, became familiar along the roads and trails.

CAN YOU DO THIS TRICK?

DIRECTIONS: In this barnyard picture there are 10 animals and fowls, the trick is to draw four straight lines through the picture, separate each of them into a pen by themselves. It may look easy, but after you work an hour or so you will think differently. To the person who can do this trick correctly, we will give absolutely free a $275 piano, but in case two, three, or more do it correctly, we will not give the piano away, but will divide $200 equally among the lying contestants. Only one answer accepted from each family; employes or their families cannot participate. Draw the lines in this picture, write your name and address plainly in ink on a separate piece of paper and bring or mail to us not later than Wednesday, Oct 20. Address Contest Dept.
